

Booklet 4

Part 1. Changing your thinking
Part 2. Taking action to lift your mood

Just had a baby?

Part 1: Changing your thinking

Thoughts	4
Notice your thoughts	5
Thoughts are powerful	7
Changing a negative thought	9
Put your thoughts to the test	15
Breathing techniques for relaxing	17
Summary	18

Part 2: Taking action to lift your mood

Things to do to lift your mood	20
Action plan	22
Laughter	23
Summary	23

What is this booklet for?

If you've recently had a baby, you may be finding some areas of life difficult to cope with. This booklet will give you information to help you cope.

There are other booklets available in this series, some of which you may find useful

Booklet 1: Information on baby blues and postnatal depression

Booklet 2: Thinking about motherhood and babies

Booklet 3:

Part 1. Feeling more positive about yourself

Part 2. How to relax

Booklet 5: Panic attacks

Booklet 6:

Part 1. Overcoming avoidance

Part 2. Taking action to problem solve

Acknowledgements

Childrens Centre West Bowling Parents Group

Health Visitors at Kensington Street Health Centre

Dr Frances Cole

Prof Mike Lucock

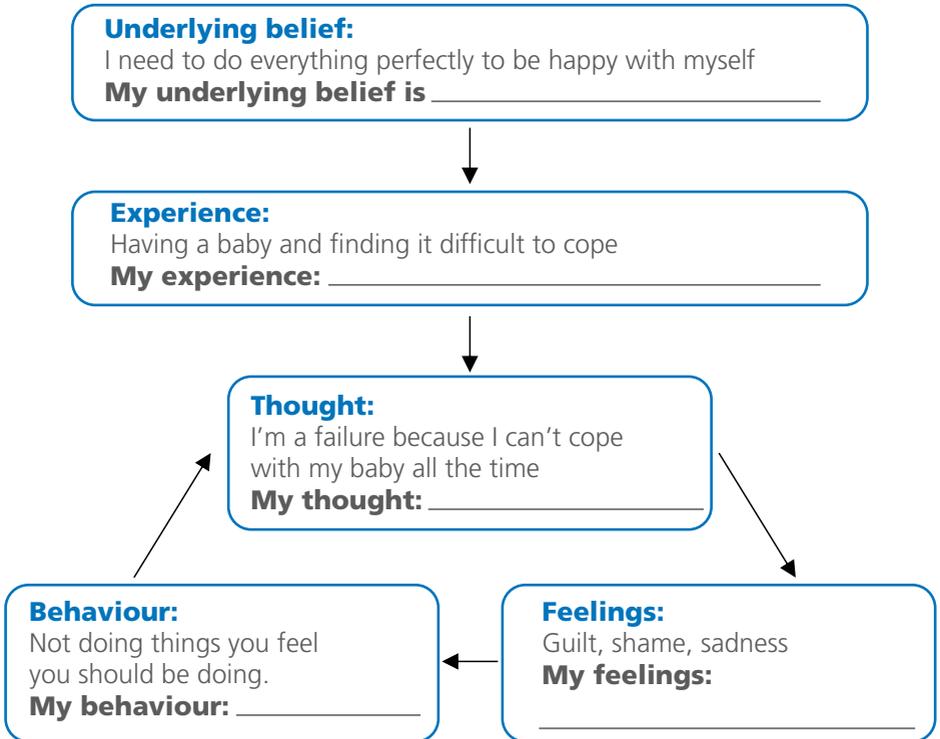

Specialist Mother and Baby Mental Health Services

Thoughts

The beliefs we make about the world around us are based on the experiences we have had since childhood. They help us to make sense of the world but some of our beliefs can be unhelpful to us. These may be about how we can be happy or what needs to happen for us to feel worthwhile.

For example, Debby believed that she had to succeed at everything she tried in order to feel happy with herself. When her baby was born she felt overwhelmed. At times she felt as though she didn't know how to be a mother. This experience didn't fit with her belief that she had to succeed and she began to have thoughts about being a failure and not being as good as other mothers who all seemed to be coping perfectly. Her mood became very low and she started to feel anxious and guilty. The lower her mood became the more thoughts she had about her failure and a thought cycle began.

You can also try to identify your own thought cycle:

it's important to break the cycle of depression and to do this you need to identify which thoughts make you feel low. You can then begin to challenge the belief that is causing you to feel depressed and anxious.

Notice your thoughts...

There are ways of thinking that everyone experiences from time to time but that make us feel bad. If you notice your thoughts you can then challenge them. Ask yourself what is going through your mind. Below is a list of unhelpful thinking—do you notice that you think like this ever?

Labelling yourself negatively... I'm a bad mother

Do you label yourself negatively? What's your thought?

Mind reading or assuming what other people are thinking... If I tell my Health Visitor how I am really feeling they will take my baby away.

Do you mind read? What's your thought?

Predicting that something bad will happen in the future... My baby is going to get ill because I can't find the energy to clean the house today.

Do you predict what will happen? What's your thought?

Seeing things in black and white extreme thinking... I didn't get all the shopping I wanted; the whole trip was a waste of time.

Do you see things in black and white? What's your thought?

Over generalising... I haven't been out with my friends for a while; they won't want to know me anymore.

Do you over generalise? What's your thought?

Discounting anything positive you've done... I'll never be as good as everyone else, so what if I took my baby out for a walk today, I bet every other Mum does it every day.

Do you discount positive actions? What's your thought?

Exaggerating or catastrophising... You think a lot about a mistake you've made and imagine terrible things happening as a result. E.g.

My baby sounds chesty, there is something terribly wrong with her.

Do you exaggerate? What's your thought?

Should or ought or thinking that leads to guilt... I ought to be happy about the new baby; I should be getting out more.

Do you feel guilty? What's your thought?

Assuming the worst... I'm finding breast feeding difficult, I'll never be able to do it.

Do you assume the worst? What's your thought?

Thoughts are powerful:

Thoughts are very powerful but often we do not even notice the thought we're having. Thoughts can take the form of language or images. By noticing our thoughts we can then challenge them and come up with a more balanced thought.

Recall a situation which upset you recently

1. Example: my mother-in-law said my house was a mess.

The situation: _____

2. Example: I can't do anything right, I am useless.

My thought: _____

3. Example: embarrassed, hurt and sad.

My feelings: _____

Change your thinking...

1. Notice the thought.

Example: I can't do anything right, I am useless.

2. Challenge the thought - a more balanced thought would lead you to feel better.

Example: My mother-in-law said my house was a mess. My balanced thought would be, I am doing my best. Playing with my baby is more important than a very tidy house. My mother-in-law and I have different views.

3. A more balanced thought will change your feelings - this can help you feel better.

Example: I am not so upset, I'm a little irritated but I feel okay about myself.

Give an example of a time when you noticed and questioned your thinking and it changed the way you felt about something.

1. Your thought: _____

2. Your balanced thought: _____

3. Your feelings: _____

By answering these questions you'll start to build up evidence that will help you think of a better thought than the one which made you feel bad. This will allow you to start to look at your situation from a different view point.

Changing a negative thought into a more balanced thought:

1 Your negative thought that leads you to feel bad:

2 What evidence supports this thought?

3 What is the evidence against this thought? (remember to recognise your strengths, for example, what you've managed to do even if it only feels small. it's important to recognise and reward ourselves for what we have managed rather than focus on weaknesses)

4 What would you say to a friend who was having the same thought as you?

5 Is the thought about something bad or negative that may not actually happen? If yes what might happen which is not as bad?

6 From what you've now recognised write your alternative, balanced thought here, based on the answers to the questions.

If you tell yourself your balanced thought this will lead you to feel more balanced.

Booklet 4 part 1

Changing your thinking

CLIENT FEEDBACK

What did you find helpful about booklet 4 part 1?

What is your understanding of noticing your thoughts since reading booklet 4 part 1?

Have you been able to notice your negative thoughts?

If you've, have you been able to change it into a more balanced thought?

How will booklet 4 part 1 help you in the future?

Was there anything missing or unhelpful about this booklet?

Please return this form to your Health Visitor or Lisa Milne at Specialist Mother and Baby Mental Health Team Fieldhead House 2-8 St Martin's Avenue Bradford BD7 1LG.

Booklet 4 part 2

Taking action to lift your mood

CLIENT FEEDBACK

What did you find helpful about booklet 4 part 2?

How has booklet 4 part 2 helped you deal with your problems?

What do you feel you can do now that you couldn't do before?

Was there anything missing or unhelpful about booklet 4 part 2?

Please return this form to your Health Visitor or Lisa Milne
at Specialist Mother and Baby Mental Health Team Fieldhead
House 2-8 St Martin's Avenue Bradford BD7 1LG.

You & Your Care

Booklet 4 part 1

Changing your thinking

FACILITATOR FEEDBACK

What aspects of booklet 4 part 1 did you think were useful to your client? Why?

What aspects of booklet 4 part 1 did you think were not useful to your client? Why?

How did you find the facilitation of booklet 4 part 1? Please include what was good, difficult, time taken, ease of explaining.

What if anything is missing from booklet 4 part 1?

What changes would you like to see in booklet 4 part 1?

Please return this form to Lisa Milne (internal Post) at Specialist Mother and Baby Mental Health Team Fieldhead House 2-8 St Martin's Avenue Bradford BD7 1LG.

Booklet 4 part 2

Taking action to lift your mood

FACILITATOR FEEDBACK

What aspects of booklet 4 part 2 did you think were useful to your client? Why?

What aspects of booklet 4 part 2 did you think were not useful to your client? Why?

How did you find the facilitation of booklet 4 part 2? Please include what was good, difficult, time taken, ease of explaining.

What if anything is missing from booklet 4 part 2?

What changes would you like to see in booklet 4 part 2?

Please return this form to Lisa Milne (internal Post) at Specialist Mother and Baby Mental Health Team Fieldhead House 2-8 St Martin's Avenue Bradford BD7 1LG.
You & Your Care

Put your thoughts to the test

Another way to find out whether your thoughts are true is to put them to the test. For example, if you've a thought like... "I'll never be able to change my baby's nappy without making a complete mess of it."

Give yourself a rating out of 10 to see how you think you're doing nappy changing at the moment. Mark the rating with a cross on the line below:

0 _____ 10

I have done poorly

I have done well

Next make a prediction about how you expect to be in a week's time.

0 _____ 10

I have done poorly

I have done well

Note down any evidence you've for and against this prediction.

Evidence for:

Evidence against:

Note down your rating each day for 7 days.

Day 1 _____

Day 2 _____

Day 3 _____

Day 4 _____

Day 5 _____

Day 6 _____

Day 7 _____

Compare your ratings for the 1st and 7th days. Did your prediction come true?

If it did, what could you do to make the situation easier?

If your prediction did not come true, think of a rule that could help in similar situations in the future. e.g.

I usually improve when I pace myself and try the new task several times. I can't do everything perfectly first go, some things take practice and getting used to.

This rule is more accurate and will help you feel less bad.

Breathing

If you're feeling stressed and anxious it's likely you'll be breathing with short, sharp breaths that only use part of your lungs. By learning to breathe more deeply your breathing will start to slow down, bringing a feeling of calmness and control.

First ask yourself how stressed /anxious/angry you feel. Rate it from 0-10 with 0 as calm.

Hold your breath for a count of 3. This disrupts your unhelpful breathing pattern. Try to breathe in through your nose. Imagine you've a balloon in your stomach that you need to fill with the air. You don't want your chest to rise higher (this indicates more shallow breathing). You want your stomach to rise as this shows you're doing deep abdominal breathing.

Place one hand on your chest and one hand on your stomach - you should see the hand on your stomach rising most. Now breathe in for a count of 3, hold the breath for a count of 2 then breathe out through your nose or mouth for a count of 4. Repeat.

After repeating 3 times rate how you feel again, between 0-10. Are you calmer? If not repeat again and re-rate, continue to do so until you feel a positive effect.

If you're beginning to feel better decide if you need to repeat again for more benefit.

It's possible that slowing your breathing will make you feel dizzy. This is simply a result of you getting more oxygen than you had before. Ultimately learning to slow your breathing will enable you to feel physically and mentally more calm and relaxed.

Summary

Section 4 – Thoughts

- Sometimes our beliefs can be unhelpful to us.
- Our beliefs can lead to thoughts which make us feel bad about ourselves. There are many ways in which we think badly of ourselves, e.g. labelling ourselves, mind reading other people, predicting bad things happening, over generalising.
- Negative thoughts can affect the way we feel and behave negatively.
- By challenging our thoughts we can come up with an alternative that has a more positive impact on the way we feel and behave.

Booklet 4 Part 2

Taking action to lift your mood

Things you can do to lift your mood

It can be useful to lift your mood by doing things that make you feel good and/or give you a feeling of accomplishment. Here are some suggestions of activities which you could do to lift your mood.

Join groups and build relationships with other mothers in your area

Go outside for some fresh air

Play happy music

Notice the things you enjoy doing and take pleasure in them

Ask someone else to feed the baby to allow you to get some sleep

Do some gentle exercise (it will improve your mood)

Talk with others about good times you've had or phone a friend who makes you laugh

Take time to watch, chat, hold and play with your baby

Take the baby out for a walk

Make sure you eat and drink regularly to keep your blood sugar level

Sleep when baby sleeps

Talk to someone who is supportive

Write a list of activities that give you pleasure or a feeling of accomplishment. e.g. going out with friends or family.

Write a list of activities which need to be done e.g. paying bills or shopping.

Now make an action plan of two things every day;

Try to get some activity and exercise into every day - it will help to lift your mood. Include a mix of your easy and more difficult activities. Now put some gentle exercise into each day - a walk with your baby, dance to some music. These will also lift your mood.

Monday
Tuesday
Wednesday
Thursday
Friday
Saturday
Sunday

Laughter

Laughter is proven to help people emotionally and physically.

It lifts mood and makes you feel better.

Decide to laugh more - especially with your children.

Laugh if they do something funny or are trying to make you laugh. It will make them happy and you happier.

It releases tension and frustration.

If at first you make yourself laugh you'll find you end up laughing more naturally and more often.

Summary

- Plan your day to include activities that give you a feeling of pleasure or accomplishment.
- Making an action plan can be useful
- Laughter lifts your mood. Make yourself laugh, soon you'll find it happens more easily.

Your thoughts: